

POLITICAL SCIENCE PREPARES LEADERS

Students at the University of St. Thomas gain an in-depth understanding of government and social science in the Political Science program. Students can concentrate in public administration or public law and policy, and UST also offers a pre-law program.

The Political Science program has strong internship and mentorship opportunities that often lead to employment, and a large percentage of undergraduates go on to graduate and law schools.

"My decision to attend the University of St. Thomas was easy. The small classroom size ensures individualized attention and no one at St. Thomas is just a number. My political science professors are approachable, and always willing to help. They also make certain that the Catholic teachings are often linked to class discussions."
