Japanese Film Series

Presented by:

The film celebrates the 100th anniversary of the planting of the Japanese cherry trees along the Potomac River in Washington, DC in 1912. It depicts the life of Dr. Joikichi Takamine, a successful chemist and businessman who was inspired by Eliza Rushamah Scidmore's fascination with the beauty of Japanese cherry blossoms. Dr. Takamine's gift of Japanese cherry trees to First Lady Helen Taft began Washington, DC's love affair with cherry blossoms.
