SAMPLE—SUBJECT TO CHANGE

University of St. Thomas

Spring 2003

Advanced Latin 4393/Philosophical Latin 5359

Dr. Robert J. Yankow

The primary purpose of this course is to work with Latin. To this end we will review Latin grammar as necessary and translate (practice makes perfect) selections from the works of various authors. These authors/works are: The Bible, "Genesis;" Augustine, Confessiones; Cicero, de officiis; and Tertullian, de cultu feminarum. You will be provided with Xerox copies of these texts (partial, with the exception of "genesis"). My expectation is that you already possess or will soon acquire both a Latin dictionary and grammar. Also, although the name of this game is primarily translation of Latin, you should nevertheless expect to exercise verbally your philosophical inclinations, persuasions, predispositions and/or prejudices as we meet this material, especially since a portion of your grade depends on it.

ACADEMIC SUPPORT: Along with individual and group counseling for both personal and academic concerns, Counseling Services provides students with workshops each semester that focus on study skills and related academic needs. A schedule for these workshops can be found on the UST website under "Campus Calendar" as well as the Counseling Services website at www.sthom.edu/counseling. For more information, contact Rose Signorello or Debby Jones at 713-525-3162 or 6953.

Any student with a documented disability requiring accommodations in this course is encouraged to contact me after class or during office hours. Additionally, students will need to contact the office of Counseling Services for Students with Special Needs (Disability Services) at 713-525-3162 or 6953.

No doubt you will arrive in a timely manner for all classes and be prepared.

If there are any questions or problems along the way, please do not hesitate to see me. My office is located in room 219 of Malloy Hall (2nd floor). My phone extension is #3139 (from outside the university it is: 713-525-3139). E-mail is: yankow@stthom.edu. Feel free to stop by at any time.

Unless you have money to throw away, be careful where you park your vehicle. Minions of the City of Houston regularly look for and ticket parking violators. Also, you would be well advised not to park in spaces marked "Reserved" or "Assigned." Good luck with parking; you'll need it. For whatever it's worth, I've noticed that if you arrive on campus by 6:00 AM, you should have no problems finding a place to park.

The final exam is scheduled for: Tuesday, May 6, 2003 at 3:00 -5:30 PM.
