

Viewing Wiki Details

After opening a Wiki, the page most recently created or edited will be displayed in the left pane. The right pane, labeled Wiki Details, provides the index for all Wiki pages in chronological order. This pane has several tools to control the display of the Wiki.

- A. Click the up-down arrow to expand or collapse the details of the Wiki itself: number of pages, total comments, and creation date.
- B. Click the left-right arrow to hide or show the Wiki Details pane.
- C. Click the four-way arrow to expand the Wiki to full page; click it again to bring back the other screen elements, such as the Course Menu and breadcrumbs.
- D. Click the contextual arrow of any listed page to edit the page or show its editing history.

The History command displays a sortable list of versions of a page, sorted by default in reverse chronological order. To see the differences between two or more versions, check the checkboxes for those versions, and click the Compare Versions button.

Page History

Each time a page is saved, a new version of that page is created. To revert to a previous version, delete all versions saved after the intended version. Versions can also be compared to each other to show the differences made since the last edit.
